Brand Guidelines & Identity Playbook

At Lewa's Growth Oil, we believe that effective hair care doesn't need to be complicated; it simply needs to be natural, balanced, and created with care. This document serves as the compass for our brand identity. It ensures that every visual and written touchpoint reflects our heritage, our natural approach, and our commitment to empowering women.

At the heart of Lewa's Growth Oil lies a philosophy that hair care is not a constant battle, but a return to the healing simplicity and raw wisdom of nature. These guidelines preserve that philosophy by providing a clear framework that ensures every creative decision aligns with our vision of natural balance and intentional care. From the warmth of our typography to the authenticity of our imagery, every detail exists to reinforce the same message: that Lewa is a symbol of restorative beauty, expressed with clarity and purpose.

Consistency is the key to building a lasting legacy, and these guidelines are designed to ensure that our message of healing and simplicity is never compromised. They serve as a compass for designers, marketers, and storytellers alike, equipping them with the tools to express our brand with accuracy and heartfelt impact. By following this framework, we protect not just the look and feel of Lewa, but also the generational wisdom and restorative values that define us.

Ultimately, this document is not about limitation but about empowerment. It is an invitation to create with intention while remaining faithfully rooted in the natural identity of Lewa. These guidelines are here to unify our expression, strengthen our presence, and fuel the growth of Lewa as a brand that not only heals hair but empowers women to flourish with confidence.

LEWA'S
GROWTH OIL

Who We Are?

“Crowned Flow” embodies royalty, nourishment, and continuous growth. At its core, the mark elevates hair care into a symbol of confidence and authority. The crown conveys regality and self-worth, positioning the user not simply as someone applying oil, but as someone claiming their beauty as a crown.

The overall silhouette subtly recalls the shape of an oil drop or flask, grounding the design in its category while avoiding literal clichés. This balance of symbolism and restraint ensures timelessness and adaptability, whether embossed on packaging or showcased in luxury finishes.

Beneath it, the halo arc acts as a seal of protection, reinforcing purity, care, and premium quality. It communicates that the oil does more than beautify – it shields and preserves the hair. The flowing lines extend this message, capturing natural movement, deep nourishment, and uninterrupted growth. Their varied weights suggest layered treatment, from scalp health to length retention and shine.

The brand message is clear:
Royal care for hair that flows freely.

Typography

Primary Font

Beautique Display was chosen to lead the visual identity because it perfectly captures the intersection of heritage and modern luxury. It doesn't just name the product; it "dresses" it.

- The Anatomy of Elegance: The sharp, tapered serifs and dramatic contrast between thick and thin strokes mimic the refined nature of a premium oil. It feels "Luminescent," catching the eye just as healthy hair catches the light.
- A Nod to the Ritual: The curves of the letters feel organic and fluid; reminiscent of the Coconut and Rosemary botanical roots; while the structured stems feel authoritative and trustworthy.
- The "Premium" Signal: Display fonts are traditionally used in high-fashion and luxury boutiques. By using this as the primary typeface, Lewa immediately separates itself from "drugstore" competitors, positioning itself as an intentional, high-level treatment.

Brand Typeface

Neue Regrade is a modern, versatile typeface that balances geometric precision with a friendly, approachable character. While the heading font provides the "Glow," Neue Regrade provides the Clarity.

- The Psychology of Simplicity: True to Lewa’s "All-in-One" mission, this font is highly legible and stripped of unnecessary decoration. It mirrors the product’s goal: removing complexity to reveal results.
- Modern Vitality: The clean, open curves of the letters feel fresh and "Healthy." It represents the modern woman who is informed, discerning, and values efficiency over "marketing noise."
- The Clinical Bridge: Because it is easy to read even at small sizes, it brings a level of "Measured Intention" to the packaging. It tells the user that while the story is personal, the formulation is professional.
