

Lewa's Growth Oil

Visual Identity Presentation

Introduction

This document presents one distinct logo developed for Lewa's Growth Oil. Each concept aims to convey the brand's core values of growth, efficacy, and sophistication while ensuring a unique and memorable visual identity in the competitive hair care market.

Brand Overview

Lewa's Growth Oil was born from a journey that began with frustration. For the founder, hair care felt like a constant battle: persistent dandruff, product buildup, and heartbreaking breakage that no product seemed to solve. Each "fix" only caused more damage, leaving her hair fragile and her confidence shaken.

The turning point came not from a laboratory, but from nature. Guided by the wisdom passed down from her mother, she returned to the raw simplicity of coconut oil and rosemary. Stripping away chemicals, she learned the craft of formulation with patience and intention, discovering that the most powerful remedies often come from the earth itself.

The transformation was undeniable. Dandruff cleared, breakage stopped, and her hair began to thrive in a way it never had before. What started as a personal remedy revealed a truth the beauty industry often overlooks: effective solutions don't need to be complicated; they need to be natural, balanced, and created with care.

From that realization, Lewa's Growth Oil emerged. Refined from a mother's kitchen into a professional, all-in-one solution, it carries forward a mission to help women reclaim their hair health without the stress of endless routines. Lewa exists to prove that true beauty thrives when nature leads the way, empowering women to experience hair that doesn't just survive, but flourishes.

GROWTH OIL

Rationale

“Crowned Flow” embodies royalty, nourishment, and continuous growth. At its core, the mark elevates hair care into a symbol of confidence and authority. The crown conveys regality and self-worth, positioning the user not simply as someone applying oil, but as someone claiming their beauty as a crown.

Beneath it, the halo arc acts as a seal of protection, reinforcing purity, care, and premium quality. It communicates that the oil does more than beautify – it shields and preserves the hair. The flowing lines extend this message, capturing natural movement, deep nourishment, and uninterrupted growth. Their varied weights suggest layered treatment, from scalp health to length retention and shine.

The overall silhouette subtly recalls the shape of an oil drop or flask, grounding the design in its category while avoiding literal clichés. This balance of symbolism and restraint ensures timelessness and adaptability, whether embossed on packaging or showcased in luxury finishes.

The brand message is clear:
Royal care for hair that flows freely.

Typography

Primary Font

Beautique Display was chosen to lead the visual identity because it perfectly captures the intersection of heritage and modern luxury. It doesn't just name the product; it "dresses" it.

- The Anatomy of Elegance: The sharp, tapered serifs and dramatic contrast between thick and thin strokes mimic the refined nature of a premium oil. It feels "Luminescent," catching the eye just as healthy hair catches the light.
- A Nod to the Ritual: The curves of the letters feel organic and fluid; reminiscent of the Coconut and Rosemary botanical roots; while the structured stems feel authoritative and trustworthy.
- The "Premium" Signal: Display fonts are traditionally used in high-fashion and luxury boutiques. By using this as the primary typeface, Lewa immediately separates itself from "drugstore" competitors, positioning itself as an intentional, high-level treatment.

Secondary Font

Neue Regrade is a modern, versatile typeface that balances geometric precision with a friendly, approachable character. While the heading font provides the "Glow," Neue Regrade provides the Clarity.

- The Psychology of Simplicity: True to Lewa's "All-in-One" mission, this font is highly legible and stripped of unnecessary decoration. It mirrors the product's goal: removing complexity to reveal results.
- Modern Vitality: The clean, open curves of the letters feel fresh and "Healthy." It represents the modern woman who is informed, discerning, and values efficiency over "marketing noise."
- The Clinical Bridge: Because it is easy to read even at small sizes, it brings a level of "Measured Intention" to the packaging. It tells the user that while the story is personal, the formulation is professional.
